Charlee Jacques stays strong through cancer fight

By CASSIA BURNS
News Correspondent

WILMINGTON — On June 23, 2017, life for toddler Charlee Jacques and her family took a drastic shift as she awoke that morning unable to walk and was immediately rushed to the ER. At not even two years old, Charlee had been diagnosed with Stage 4 high-risk Neuroblastoma as well as Opsoclonus Myoclonus Syndrome (OMS). Since her diagnosis, Charlee has undergone various forms of treatment in order to remove the cancerous tumor found in her abdomen and curb the effects of OMS. She has received five rounds of chemotherapy, which shrunk the tumor by 80 percent. She then underwent surgery to remove the tumor, and she later had two rounds of high-dose chemotherapy which were followed directly by stem cell treatments each time.

As of Tuesday, Feb. 6, she has begun the first of 12 days of radiation. Proving to be very resilient, Charlee bounced back quickly from the treatments, leaving the hospital as early as three weeks following each stem cell transplant when she was expected to require between four and six weeks to recover.

Since Charlee's diagnosis, the local Wilmington community, as well as several surrounding towns, have come together to support the toddler and her family. Recently, the organization "Cops for Kids with Cancer" presented the family with a check for $5,000 to fund Charlee's medical expenses at the Wilmington Police Station.

This past Saturday, Feb. 3, a fundraiser entitled the "Charlee Strong Fundraiser" was also held in honor of Charlee. About 150 guests gathered at the Woburn Moose Lodge for a night filled with food, raffles, and music from a local DJ. All of the raffle prizes were either made by attendees of the event, or donated from local businesses around Wilmington.

As of publication, the amount raised at the fundraiser was unknown, but it can be seen on the CharleeStrong Facebook page.

In response to the outpouring of support from the community, the family maintains that it enables them to remain positive throughout their journey.

"Thank you to everyone following our story because the support has made us stay super positive knowing we have an army behind us!" said Erica Jensen, Charlee's mother, on behalf of the family.

They also hope that from their situation, people are able to observe the reality that is childhood cancer despite how rare it may be. As the funding for childhood cancer is only 3.8 percent, they advocate that more awareness is necessary in order continue working towards a cure.

To learn more about Charlee's story, information can be found on the Facebook page documenting her journey, Charlee-Strong. To donate to Charlee and family, visit their GoFundMe page: <https://www.gofundme.com/charlee-strong>.

WILMINGTON — The Wilmington School Committee took two votes on the town's school transportation contract at their meeting on Jan. 24. The first was to enter a 3-year contract with North Reading Transportation, with whom the town has contracted throughout recent years. The second was to ask the Town Manager to prepare a Town Meeting warrant article that would extend the town's contract with the company for a fourth and fifth year if the School Committee so chose at that time. Both passed unanimously.

North Reading Transportation was the only bidder, despite the fact that Interim Director of Administration and Finance Frank Antonelli reached out to nine companies. Antonelli also advertised in a variety of publications, including the Lowell Sun and Massachusetts record procurement platform CommBuys. In reference to the small response pool, he

Town budget outlined

By LIZZIE MCDERMOTT
News Correspondent

WILMINGTON — On Jan. 29, Wilmington Town Manager Jeff Hull outlined the local budget proposal for the coming year.

The proposed budget for Fiscal Year 2019 is $114,400,729, and this includes values associated with the Capital Investment plan. The current (FY 2018) budget stands at $109,274,471, which marks a 4.9 percent increase. After transfers into reserve accounts, the total increase in expenditures between the two years comes to 3.96 percent.

Hull highlighted some of the major accomplishments of Fiscal Year 2018. These included the completion of Yentile Park, the hiring of Substance Abuse Program Coordinator Samantha Reef, the reconstruction of a chair lift at the Shawsheen School, the completion of the final section of the North Intermediate School roof renovation, and the completion of the first phase of paving at the North Intermediate School.

A project tentatively slated for Fiscal Year 2019 is a proposed $80,000 Pickleball complex behind Town Hall, after the expression of enthusiastic interest by many residents. Another project is the repair of a Dec. 29 water line break between Woburn Street and Park Street, over Route 93. Though water pressure has not, at this point, been affected, the line is still vital to the town water distribution network. This project will cost $850,000, and Hull said the town is looking into covering it through water rates.

Five arrested in prostitution sweep

BURLINGTON — The Burlington Police Department arrested five men during an undercover prostitution sting operation last Friday night.

The Burlington police detective unit, in conjunction with officers from the Middlesex Sheriff's Office and the New England Electronic Crimes Task Force, conducted a reverse sting operation at a local hotel to target potential customers for prostitution.

Similar to operations conducted in the past, these investigations are done in an effort to stop human trafficking and disrupt the relentless cycle of harm caused by the sex trade.

Over the past six years, the Burlington police have arrested more than 46 people in these types of operations.

Those arrested included George Arkalis, 20, of Burlington; Naren Koya, 28, of Burlington; Christopher O'Connell, 33, of Wilmington; Paul Zagami, 53, of Bedford; and Dana Cangiamila, 50, of Billerica.

All five men are charged with sexual conduct for a fee. Cangiamila is also charged with Possession of a Class B Substance and a warrant out of Haverhill District Court for motor vehicle offenses.

All five suspects were scheduled to be arraigned Monday in Woburn District Court.

These are allegations. All suspects are considered innocent until proven guilty.

HELPFUL TIPS TO KEEP IN MIND WHEN AMENDING YOUR TAX RETURN

— PART I —

Taxpayers can fix mistakes or omissions on their tax return by filing an amended tax return. Those who need to amend will find the following tips helpful.

File using paper form: Use Form 1040X, Amended U.S. Individual Income Tax Return, to correct the tax return. Taxpayers can't file amended returns electronically. They can obtain the form on IRS.gov/forms at any time. Mail the Form 1040X to the address listed in the form's instructions.

Amend to correct errors: File an amended tax return to correct errors or make changes to an original tax return. For example, taxpayers should amend to change their filing status, or to correct their income, deductions or credits.

Don't amend for math errors, missing forms: Taxpayers generally don't need to file an amended return to correct math errors on their original return. The IRS will automatically correct these items. In addition, taxpayers do not need to file an amended return if they forgot to attach tax forms, such as a Form W-2 or a schedule. The IRS will mail a request to the taxpayer, if needed.

File within three-year time limit: Taxpayers usually have three years from the date they filed the original tax return to file Form 1040X to claim a refund. A taxpayer can file it within two years from the date they paid the tax, if that date is later. That means the last day for most people to file a claim for a refund for tax year 2014 is April 16, 2018. See Form 1040X instructions for special rules that may apply.

Fullerton, once lost but now remembered

(Eds. note: this is part 2 of a two-part report on John "Jackie" Fullerton, a Wilmington native who died while fighting in Vietnam 50 years ago)

By MICHAEL L. KELLEY

Around 0300 hours on Jan. 31, under a moonless tropical night sky, the Tet Offensive began when sappers from the Viet Cong C-10 Commando Battalion left their hide out with their weapons and explosives and arrived on Thong Nhut Boulevard near the U.S. Embassy with help from local VC guides.

Firing their AK-47 assault rifles and B-40 RPGs, they attacked the Military Police guarding the front and side gates. The Military Police returned fire and retreated inside the high walls protecting the embassy grounds. They quickly closed and locked the large steel gates. The sappers, led by two VC officers, then went down the street and set off an explosive at the corner of the outer wall, blowing a three foot hole through the wall, allowing them entry into the compound.

As the sappers climbed through the hole and began to sweep the grounds, two MPs fired at the dark moving shadows, killing the first two sappers, who were the leaders of C-10 Commando Team. The MPs got on their radio and called their headquarters, frantically reporting the code words, "SIGNAL 3001!"

"They are coming in! Help us!"

The remaining sappers rushed forward, firing their weapons, quickly over running the two outnumbered MPs, killing them both.

At headquarters of the 716th Military Police Battalion, rapid plans and orders were issued and calls went out to all patrols and units, including the 52nd Infantry Security Guards, directing them to go to the embassy to assist in securing the facility.

One of the first to arrive on scene was a two man gun jeep, equipped with an M-60 machine gun. Viet Cong snipers, hiding in a building across the street, let loose a hail of automatic weapons fire onto the jeep, killing the American soldiers, and capturing the M-60.

Within minutes, more U.S. MPs arrived, including elements from the 52nd Infantry, Jackie's unit.

They began to get a fix on the confusing situation. Soon a heavy volume of crossfire zipped from all angles, filling the dark night sky with red and green tracers. Jackie found himself in the middle of a nightmare. As the minutes turned to hours, the Americans began to put a plan together for action.

Around 0500 hours, a U.S. helicopter tried to land on the roof of the embassy to deploy a squad of 101st Airborne infantry troops, but were driven off by gunfire from the captured M-60 machine gun.

When enough Americans arrived, they concentrated their fire upon the VC machine gunner, knocking him out of action. By 0630 hours, Jackie and his fellow soldiers of the 716th M.P. Battalion and the 52nd Infantry, led by Lieutenant Frank Ribich and Sergeant Paul Healy, prepared to enter the embassy grounds. They broke open the steel gates and swept into the embassy, shooting at the C-10 sappers, killing all but two, who were wounded and taken prisoner.

The 101st troops returned in helicopters and made a landing on the roof, sweeping down the stairs and cleared all the rooms, then linked up with the soldiers inside the embassy compound.

For Jackie, second thoughts of "soft Saigon duty" must have filled his head. It had been a nerve racking night, battling the unseen enemy in the murky darkness with sniper fire from all angles. It had been as intense as any jungle firefight he had seen with his old infantry unit. A group of news reporters who had gathered with the Americans were filming their reports and taking photographs.

One of those famous photographs was of a tall, lanky soldier carrying wounded to safety. That soldier was PFC Jackie Fullerton Jr., Wilmington High School number 32. While under sniper fire, and using his football skills, Jackie carried the wounded to waiting medical personnel. A Life magazine reporter took his picture and within days, Jackie was on the front pages of news papers and in Time magazine.

As the battle ended around 0900 hours, the soldiers of the 52nd Infantry were returning to their barracks at the Bien Hoa Air Base, when fate closed in on Jackie. Viet Cong insurgents fired an RPG rocket at the truck Jackie was riding in. It exploded, killing the 19-year old warrior. 20 minutes later, General Westmoreland arrived at the embassy to inspect the damage. He told the tired and exhausted MPs that they had done an outstanding job securing the embassy, denying the enemy their prize target.

The general was happy to report to President Lyndon B. Johnson that the enemy had failed to gain their objective. Young Fullerton did not live to reap the rewards of this hard fought victory. In the aftermath and confusion of the Tet Battle, his new unit, Company D, 52nd Infantry, 716th Military Police, sent his body home to Wilmington, Massachusetts.

At his interment at the Wildwood Cemetery Soldiers Lot, his hometown gave him one of the largest funeral services ever held. LTC. Richard Clark posthumously presented his grieving parents and family four Purple Hearts, a Bronze Star, and a Combat Infantry Badge. Most of these awards were earned while Jackie was a "Grunt" with A Company, 35th Infantry.

All he got for his courage and sacrifice at the Embassy Battle was his fourth Purple Heart, and not a well deserved Valor device for the Bronze Star. Jackie's name and photo were placed onto the official website of the 716th Military Police Battalion by former Combat MP Jim Stewart, who recognized Jackie's heroism in the embassy fight.

The army, however, failed to list him on the official Tet Memorial for those killed during the U.S. Embassy Battle because he was not killed at the embassy. The only things that remind us of his life and heroism are his grave marker in the Wildwood Cemetery and a Memorial Marker at Silver Lake, placed there by his childhood friend, Fred Shine, who raised donations from many town folk who wanted to honor the memory and valor of "The Lost Hero of Tet-68."

Wilmington receives MIIA's 'Risk Management Best Practices' award

WILMINGTON - In recognition of the extremely creative way they explore light and modified duty, the Town of Wilmington has earned the "Risk, Management Best Practices" award from the Massachusetts Interlocal Insurance Association (MIIA), the town's property and casualty insurance provider. MIIA presented the award to Wilmington during the association's annual meeting in Boston on Jan. 20.

"Congratulations to the Town of Wilmington for the extremely creative way they explored light and modified duty," said Stephen Batchelder, director of Claims Operations for MIIA.

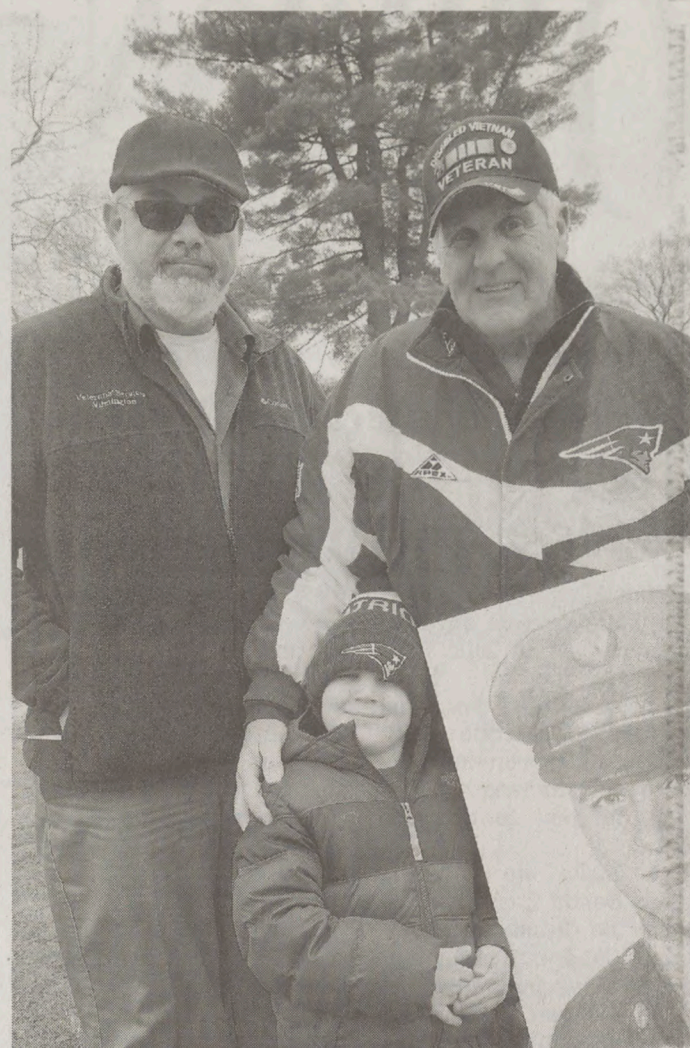

When an employee is injured at work they may lose time from work while they are recovering from their injury. Typically, their disability is the period from the injury until the time they can return to the job they had when they were injured. However, there are times when the injured worker has made considerable recovery but is not yet ready to assume all of their normal duties. Light or modified duty applies to situations where the employer is able to modify the employee's work situation so they can return to work but avoid the activities for which they are not quite ready. When this is achieved it is considered a positive result as it allows the worker to safely re-engage in the work environment.

The Risk Management Best Practices award recognizes member commitment to consistent implementation of specific, high-value best practices for various lines of coverage.

"The Town of Wilmington continues to benefit from our ongoing partnership with MIIA and the commitment to improving the wellness of our employees," says Jamie M. Magaldi, Wilmington's DPW operations manager and chairman of its safety committee. "Knowing that MIIA's team is invested in this endeavor means we can engage this challenge from multiple dimensions. It's a win-win... exposure to risk is reduced and the employees experience tangible support first hand. This team approach to risk reduction improves morale, boosts employee efficiency, and washes the once perceived divide between management and the labor force."

Letters to the editor

Banda a real American hero

To the editor,
No one agrees on anything anymore. Not in 2018. Over the years, the word "hero" has been watered down and overused to describe politicians or athletes or entertainers. The word means something different to everyone now.

But make no mistake, James Banda was a hero. It cannot be disputed or overstated. Cut from the cloth of the greatest generation, he risked life and limb in the face of tyranny and oppression, while exhibiting the essence of American spirit and resolve.

On Jan. 26, at 96 years of age, Mr. Banda passed away peacefully. In an age of disagreement and uncertainty, reflecting on Mr. Banda's life and sacrifice bring to light a stark reminder of true heroism and courage on the largest stage, in what was our world's most harrowing chapter.

A member of Patton's 2nd Armor Division, a veteran of the storming of Normandy, Mr. Banda would speak only of the heroism of his fellow soldier throughout the rest of his life. The warrior puts the health and success of his compatriot above all else, and he was no different. He crawled under burning tanks to rescue the lives of his fellow men. He received a Bronze Star for his actions.

Mr. Banda found himself in a foxhole in Europe in 1944, as German bombs rained down on him. It took four years for the medicine of the time to get him on his feet again. Still, he made no excuses. He received a Purple Heart for his wounds.

Mr. Banda's life should be celebrated daily. As we strive towards a more perfect union, we must never forget the sacrifice of one of our nation's favorite sons. The greatness of the United States is not the product of any one individual's actions. The greatness of our country is rooted in fighting spirit and a hope in a better tomorrow that drives those actions.

Selflessness and bravery in the face of overwhelming odds are what form the bedrock of this grand democratic experiment. From the sandy Normandy shores to the unforgiving Afghanistan mountains, that is the fuel that stokes the fire in the belly of every soldier who has donned the uniform of the United States.

Mr. Banda was a soldier.
An American hero.

Vaping no healthier than smoking cigarettes

WILMINGTON — Vaping's a hot topic these days. It has ignited one of the biggest debates in public health history, and has found its way into just about every newspaper and TV news show. There are at least 10 million Americans who vape currently, and more than two million of them no longer smoke cigarettes at all. Worldwide the number is harder to be sure about, but there are likely to be 30 million or more vapers.

While some data shows that e-cigarettes have benefits for adult smokers trying to quit, the industry needs to recognize that e-cigarette use in teenagers could be harmful in developing brains and cause future addictions to nicotine.

The Board of Health wants you to know that vaping can be addictive and may lure teenagers to smoking. A national panel of public health experts concluded in a report released on Jan. 30, 2018 that vaping with e-cigarettes can be addictive and that teenagers who use the devices may be at a higher risk of smoking.

The study also stopped short of declaring that e-cigarettes are safe, noting there are no long-term scientific studies of the devices' addictive potential or their effects on the heart, lungs or on reproduction. The authors of this new report cite conclusive evidence that vaping can be addictive, and that exposure to nicotine from e-cigarettes is highly variable, depending on the type of device and how it is used. They also cited conclusive proof that in addition to nicotine, most e-cigarettes contain and emit potentially toxic substances.

According to recent Youth Risk Behavioral Surveys across the state, high school youth currently use e-cigarettes at a higher rate than all other tobacco products. High school youth reported a much higher rate of e-cigarette use than adults.

While the current youth cigarette use rate in Massachusetts is just half of the adult use rate (7.7 percent versus 14 percent), the current youth e-cigarette use rate is more than nine times higher than the adult use rate (23.7 percent versus 2.6 percent).

Additionally, more youths than adults are dual users of both e-cigarettes and cigarettes. (5.2 percent of youth compared to 1.8 percent of adults). Specifically in Wilmington, 23.6 percent of 8th graders have tried e-cigarettes.

Dr. Michael Siegel, a professor at Boston University, said that "as vaping has become more popular among youth, it has displaced cigarette smoking and contributed towards the de-normalization of cigarette smoking."

The Board of Health has local regulations that you must be 21 years old to purchase tobacco and that includes e-cigarettes. E-cigarettes are also prohibited wherever smoking is prohibited. While more data and more regulations need to be implemented, specifically at the state and federal level, it is becoming increasingly clear that a more pressing campaign targeting our youth and the dangers of vaping is needed.

SADD's Dating Game returns to TMHS

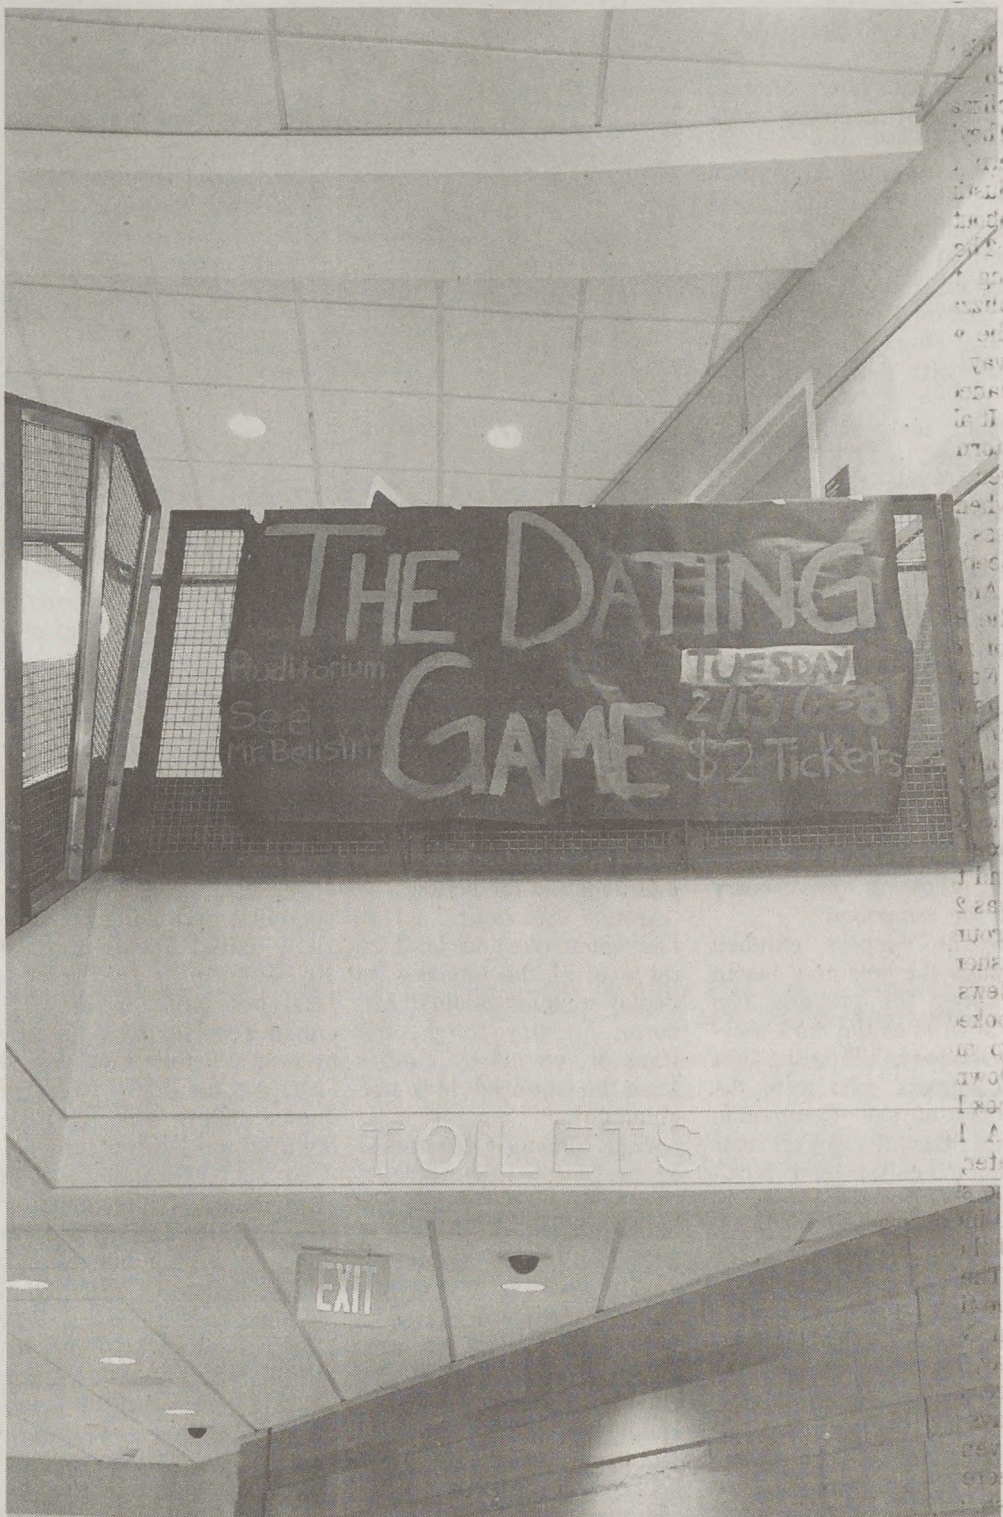

By MATT FRONDUTO
TMHS Correspondent

Do you have a significant other that you can't seem to spend enough time with? Someone who you feel as if you know everything about? Well it is time to put those skills to the test, as Tewksbury High's own Dating Game returns to the Christine L. McGrath Performing Arts Center on Tuesday, Feb. 13 from 6 - 8 p.m.

Presented by TMHS's Students Against Destructive Decisions Club (SADD), The Dating Game is essentially a variation of the Game Show Network's classic program "The Newlywed Game," but rather than pitting freshly married couples against each other, high school couples of all ages and grades are set to square off, all competing for a $50 gift card to the restaurant of their choice. A gift card which, if used properly, will certainly be able to provide one lucky couple with quite the romantic Valentine's Day dinner.

Participants in the game will, obviously, be admitted without charge, and even audience members who show up simply to watch their friends or relatives compete will only have to pay $2 for a ticket, which is quite a small fee to watch one of the most interesting (albeit lighthearted) club sponsored events that TMHS has hosted in some time.

Additionally, supporting the SADD club is quite the noble cause in and of itself, as it is an organization that prides itself on encouraging high school students to make the best, most responsible and productive choices possible. The club, headed by Mr. Bellistri, has shown its genuine desire to help others in the past, perhaps most recently with the massive Toys for Tots drive held last month.

Exemplified by the Nationwide SADD Organization's mission statement, "Supporting teens with a peer-to-peer network that fosters confidence and cultivates lifelong leadership skills," the program's spirit is truly an inspiring one, which makes support for The Dating Game even more important.

Not only is the game entertaining to watch, but it also helps to nurture and develop existing relationships into healthier ones. So just remember, if you decide to either buy a ticket or participate, you are not only helping a wonderful club, but also allowing several couples the ability to better understand each other.

That being said, if you and your significant other would like to participate in the competition, please sign up in Mr. Bellistri's room, B105.

And most importantly, have fun, try your best, and let the best couple win!

Positive people make the world a better place, Super Bowl reporting, and Washington confusion

By PAUL ANDREWS

"What's your championship," a book written by Matt Devan commented in the PLC magazine that "staff we don't have balance in their lives will be ineffective and unhappy."

He adds that "if you are not satisfied professionally and in your personal life, you won't bring your best to your work and you'll fall short of the impact you're trying to have on your students or athletes."

I thought about this quote and it is so true in life in about all we do.

How often do we find people who express delight with an event, a product or a television program someone tells us about and want to check into the issue, as soon as possible because they are so strong in their endorsement. The same thing goes in reverse as I have discussed before, there are those folks who seem to be negative about everything, who I often like to stay away from as they drag you down.

Balance in life is important in our family and work lives, including emotional, physical and occupational components. The positive people I like to be around are those who have found this balance and are so comfortable to communicate with, no matter what work they do from an executive, physician, nurse, laborer or whatever field they are employed. I find it is fun to be around and with these kinds of people, not to realize the highs and lows of the life we all live but sure you get the point.

A couple of football issues

Since the season ended this week for football, the television stations have had an amazing week with teams of reporters sent out to the cold Super Bowl land only to bring us some great interviews with everyone they could find in the Mall of America which looks absolutely fabulous. The reporters would tell you that the weather inside was around 70 degrees while outside zero temperatures. Meanwhile the game set for later Sunday was played inside a domed stadium as we all know with huge panels (floor to ceiling) open up to allow "fresh cold air" inside, which was obviously shut.

The number of cameras covering the game are a record as every possible fumble will be covered from six different angles. Record numbers of local fans, plus many others made the trip to Minnesota for the game, which could prove to pull in the largest television audience ever including the so called "top flight" commercials with some of them already aired

Washington confusion

When you feel you understand the "players" in the Washington DC drama, you find there are new folks in the picture which is forever changing. The ABC network news on the night before the State of the Union address commented that they were sending a "powerhouse political team" to report on the president's speech and you ask yourself how many people do you need to cover an address that will be out within minutes on the internet.

We now have the "war of memo's" or as they say. Who is trying to stump whom? Not taking sides on the issues per se, but candidly I have always looked up on the Department of Justice and the FBI and that has not changed. We all know they are human and some may slip but let us keep these agencies in high regard as they have been a major part of our democracy.

Tom Brady's quote

This past week, Tom Brady who had the state sports world talking about the black tape on his hand made the comment about his game that for him, "it's all about resiliency."

I am sure several are saying what is this term and why do we hear it so often? Well, the definition could be many things but is now one of those overused words but in fashion and as most know, means "an ability of bouncing back."

I often wonder why we don't use that definition or a similar one but no, we go to a classy expression and term to explain something very basic.

While I certainly feel this great athlete is a master of bouncing back at any time, common language expressions make more sense in my opinion but I could never throw a touchdown pass, so who knows?

History:

Blizzard of '78 was the storm of the century

By LARZ F. NEILSON

It's something that old timers do — bend your ear about a blizzard, way back when. They'd make any and all modern snowstorms look like a dusting. We'd always hear about the Blizzard of 1888.

They'd have stories of having to walk to school in a blizzard, and it was uphill all the way. Same thing on the way home, too. They never cancelled school.

It always seemed that snowstorms of old were much bigger. Maybe that's because when you're little, it takes less snow to make it knee-deep or waist-deep.

And then it happened — the Blizzard of '78. This was for real, and it wasn't 1878.

New England had taken a dumping in late January 1978, but that storm was "only" about 20 inches. We were at a press convention in the Sheraton Boston. Outside, the blizzard was raging, and the television said there was 20 inches of snow on the ground. Sam Roberts, publisher of the Lincoln County News of Newcastle, Maine looked down from 29 stories up and declared in a deep Downeast twang, "That don't look like no 20 inches to me!"

A little over two weeks later, on Feb. 5 and 6, we got the storm that dwarfed that 20 inches. It was The Storm of the Century.

The snow began just about the time we arrived for work on Monday morning. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are always key production days for the Town Crier. Even when it's snowing, there's a newspaper to publish, and it's due at the printers on Wednesday afternoon.

It snowed all day Monday. It snowed all night Monday night. It was still snowing heavily most of the day on Tuesday. The storm lasted for 36 hours. Three weather systems combined to create a monster storm, and a high pressure area to the north held it in place.

How much snow did we get? It's difficult to say, because of all the drifting. It was certainly over three feet, and some records say there was 55 inches.

At the Town Crier, everyone was busy writing, making up pages, or doing whatever they were supposed to be doing to get the paper to press. But nobody was out in the storm taking pictures. Shooting pictures in blowing snow really doesn't work. There's too much snow in the way. Really. The photos certainly look like you're in a snowstorm — all white streaks with a fuzzy pale background. Stu drove some material to the printer in Woburn on Tuesday, and on the way back, he took a few shots. As it turned out, that was about all we got for photos of the Blizzard of '78.

The storm wrapped up on Tuesday night, and we wrapped up the paper on Wednesday afternoon. It was printed on time, not that people could get out to the stores to buy it. And the mailman certainly wasn't going to deliver it, at least not on the usual schedule. Massachusetts was in a declared state of emergency, which prohibited all unnecessary travel, and that lasted until the following Monday.

Wilmington actually fared quite well in the blizzard, especially compared with coastal areas, where many buildings were washed away. Traffic was paralyzed across Eastern Massachusetts, and there were so many stuck cars blocking the roads, it was several days before plows could open some streets. Thousands of cars were stuck on Route 128, and some drivers died from carbon monoxide poisoning. In all, 17 people died because of the blizzard, none in Wilmington.

Wilmington has always had an amazingly efficient plowing operation, and the blizzard was no exception. There were some complaints, but Wilmington's roads were cleared much more quickly than those of any town in the area. Highway crews worked all night Monday, and continued on until Supt. Bob Palmer sent them home at 11 p.m. Tuesday. They were back at work first thing Wednesday morning, and worked overtime for several days.

On Thursday, most people were still trying to get out of their driveways. The snow was waist-deep and very dense.

Stu and I went up High Street on foot, and there at the end of the driveway was our father, Capt. Larz, pecking away at the snowbank with a long-handled shovel.

We both got after him. Here he was, 66 years old, trying to clear a long driveway.

"No, I'm just out here so Eddie Deloury can see me. He's having coffee with Dave across the street."

Sure enough, there was Eddie's front-end loader in Dave's yard. Dave was a supervisor with the Mass. Dept. of Public Works.

10 minutes later, Eddie came out.

"Get out of the way, Larz," he yelled as he headed toward the driveway.

In just a couple of minutes, it was cleared. The 12-foot blade did a nice job of trimming back the forsythia bushes, too.

At that point, Stu and I were both coming down with the flu. On top of that, the loader left a very slippery surface on the driveway, and I fell. I spent the next couple of days in bed, and so did Stu. We got no photos of the cleanup after the blizzard.

Rep. Miceli takes action against dementia

BOSTON — Representative Jim Miceli and the Massachusetts House of Representatives approved a bill targeted at helping eliminate Alzheimer's Disease. One of the most challenging and complex neurological disorders faced by modern medicine, H4116 took a series of steps to promote prevention, development of treatment, and support for those afflicted with or affected by the disease.

"Alzheimer's and dementia are heartbreaking, painful ways to lose a friend, family, or a loved one," said Rep. Miceli. "I know, with Massachusetts's outstanding biotech and pharmaceutical companies, along with our Department of Public Health, Mental Health, and other public experts that we can provide a blow to these awful diseases. Massachusetts is home to great medical institutions, businesses, and universities. If there is a place that dementia and Alzheimer's can be defeated, it's here."

H4116 consists of several key components which would change treatment of dementia patients in the Commonwealth, and promote research to fighting the disorder. One of the largest policy developments within the bill includes the establishing of a policy council, consisting of patient advocates, medical research professionals, public health officials, and statisticians to infer and direct monetary and medical resources more effectively.

In addition to promoting and streamlining current efforts, the council is also charged with working with inter-state and federal initiatives regarding research and development of treatments, with the eventual goal being prevention and reversal of dementia treatment.

In addition to looking forward, H4116 also takes steps to address current care and treatment of individuals with dementia-related illness. Immediate changes addressed by the bill include the mandate of doctors taking at least one intensive course in dementia training and identification during their medical certification, as well as that for their support staff.

H4116 also mandates the reporting of dementia or Alzheimers to legal guardians or family when discovered by a doctor, allowing for such a person to begin to implement legal and medical protections if needed. These steps will be eventually incorporated into required dementia management and protection programs for every licensed hospital in Massachusetts.

Donors urged to help Red Cross with blood donations

Winter storms and the flu don't just mean a lot of people are missing work and school — it also means they can't keep their American Red Cross blood and platelet donation appointments. The Red Cross is urging healthy donors of all blood types to roll up a sleeve to help maintain the blood supply for patients in need.

In 2018, severe winter weather forced about 600 blood drives to cancel, resulting in more than 17,500 uncollected blood and platelet donations. And, widespread flu across the U.S. has resulted in lower turnout at blood drives.

Blood and platelet donations are needed in the coming days to help replenish the blood supply and ensure patients continue to receive lifesaving treatments. Donors can help even more patients when they invite a loved one, friend or co-worker to give with them.

Make an appointment to donate this winter by downloading the free Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting redcrossblood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

How to donate blood

Simply download the American Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) to make an appointment or for more information. All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in.

Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

Blood and platelet donors can save time at their next donation by using RapidPass® to complete their pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of their donation, before arriving at the blood drive. To get started, follow the instructions at redcrossblood.org/RapidPass or use the Blood Donor App.

OBITUARIES

Robert C. Greenberg, Sr.

Owned North Reading Auto Body

Robert C. Greenberg Sr., age 82, of Wilmington passed away peacefully on Feb. 1, 2018, surrounded by the people he loved.

"Bob" or "Greenie" for short, was born in Boston, MA on Aug. 14, 1935. He was raised and educated in Medford, MA and graduated from Medford High School.

On March 29, 1958, Bob married the love of his life, Patricia A. Davis, and a 60-year adventure began.

Bob's life was driven by dedication, an extraordinary work ethic, and passion for life. He had hands of gold and could fix anything he touched. Starting out as an incredibly talented mechanic, Bob took time to learn the ins and outs of the business world. He worked his way up to be the owner and operator of North Reading Auto Body and Bay State Towing Company for over 40 years, finally retiring in 1995.

Aside from his career, Bob excelled and found love for many things. He was a 7 Palm Eagle Scout, an avid fisherman who loved his bass boat, and a traveler who had a love for trips to Las Vegas and Atlantic City, as well as to his beautiful second home in Titusville, Florida.

Bob was the beloved husband of 60 years to Patricia A. (Davis) Greenberg, devoted father of the late Patty Ann Greenberg, Robert C. Greenberg Jr. and his wife Deanna of Wilmington and Ronald A. Greenberg and his wife Dianne of North Reading.

Loving "Papa" of Rhianon, Ronald Jr., Christiana, Robert III, Roger, Richard and great-granddaughter Isabella.

Dear son of the late Gilbert and Cora (Porter) Greenberg, and brother of the late Gilbert Greenberg Jr. Bob is also survived by many nieces, nephews, and friends.

Family and friends gathered for Visiting Hours at the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington, on Wednesday, Feb. 7 from 3 - 8 p.m.

He later moved to Andover, MA where he was employed with New York Life. John worked as an advertising salesman at the Andover Townsman and as a sales manager at the Wilmington Town Crier for the next 25 years.

During his free time before and after retirement he enjoyed gardening, acquiring jewelry and going to yard sales. The old treasures and furniture obtained from these yard sales, he spent many hours refinishing and repairing.

He leaves his wife of 33 years, Carol Lewis O'Neil, of Andover MA and Southport ME. He also leaves his step son, Dr. Cary Caldwell and his wife, Karen Kassap and step grandchildren, Myles, Samuel, and Naomi Caldwell, all of Woodbridge, CT. He is also survived by his step daughter, Jana Caldwell of Boothbay Harbor and husband, JH Russell, and step grandchildren Markus and Ryan Russell. He leaves his brother, Stephen O'Neil and wife Gigi of Treasure Island Florida, a daughter Deidre, who resides in Florida, and another daughter, Kate, who resides in Maine. Momentum builds for passage of automatic voter registration BOSTON — Attorney General Maura Healey joined hundreds of citizens and dozens of organizations in urging the legislature to pass Automatic Voter Registration (H.2091 and S.373) as soon as possible this session. Teachers, veterans, environmentalists, immigrants, and union members were among those who came to the State House from all over to state to support Automatic Voter Registration (AVR).

"Voting is the most basic and essential right in a democracy," said Attorney General Maura Healey. "I am pleased to join Common Cause and the Election Modernization Coalition in making sure that right is available and accessible to all eligible voters in Massachusetts."

The AVR legislation, introduced by Sen. Cynthia Creem and Rep. Peter Kocot, would establish a system for eligible citizens to automatically register to vote when they interact with a state agency like the Registry of Motor Vehicles or MassHealth. Approximately 680,000 eligible Massachusetts voters are currently not registered.

The bill has popular and growing support in both legislative chambers, with 84 House co-sponsors and 22 Senate sponsors and received a public hearing before the Joint Committee on Election Laws last summer. The legislation is also endorsed by 61 organizations including environmental, civil rights, consumer, community, labor, and good government groups (see list below).

"The momentum for Automatic Voter Registration is building," said Pam Wilmot, Executive Director of Common Cause Massachusetts. "We had a tremendous show of support today from organizations, individuals, and opinion leaders from every corner of our state who are passionate about giving all Bay Staters a voice in elections. AVR is a small change with a big impact that will make our election system more accurate, secure and efficient. It is critical for the legislature to pass it as soon as possible."

"AVR removes obstacles to full participation in our democracy and moves us one step forward to ensuring that every eligible voter has a chance to have an equal voice in the political process," added Meryl Kessler, Executive Director of the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts.

Carol Rose, executive director, ACLU of Massachusetts said, "Voting rights are under attack. And, as we say in the streets, 'What do we do? Stand up, fight back!' With Washington aggressively peddling voter suppression, this is the time for states to be bold leaders in expanding access to the ballot for every eligible voter. Automatic Voter Registration will knock down an unnecessary barrier and simply let people vote."

"Massachusetts has played a historic role in American democracy," said Jonathan Cohn of Progressive Massachusetts. "It's time for us to deliver on that democratic promise by joining the ten other states (plus D.C.) that have adopted Automatic Voter Registration."

"While there's nothing automatic about passing Automatic Voter Registration into law, the momentum has been building with support from all corners of our state.

We hope the Legislature will soon put our state in line with all the others which have already passed this important reform," said Janet Domenitz, Executive Director of MASSPIRG.

"MassVOTE is proud to stand with the Coalition and so many grassroots supporters to continue urging the Legislator to pass this important piece of legislation," MassVOTE's Executive Director Cheryl Crawford added.

In Oregon, the first state to implement AVR, 230,000 voters registered in its first six months, and more than 265,000 inaccurate registrations were updated during the same period. About 97,000 voters participated in the 2016 election because of the reform. Ten states and the District of Columbia have already passed Automatic Voter Registration, all in a bipartisan manner: Oregon, California, West Virginia, Alaska, Vermont, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Rhode Island, and Connecticut.

The Election Modernization Coalition, which organized the Lobby Day, is led by Common Cause Massachusetts, the League of Women Voters or Massachusetts, MASSPIRG, MassVOTE, the Massachusetts Voter Table, the ACLU of Massachusetts, and Progressive Massachusetts.

Water, water (not) everywhere

By PAIGE IMPINK
News Correspondent

paige@yourtowncrier.com

Water seems to be a hot topic these days. Seas are rising, weather events are causing flooding, even a new Hollywood movie has water in its title. Yet, there is a big problem on planet earth. Some places are running out of water.

Recent reports about "Day Zero" in Cape Town, South Africa are all over the media. There will be no water spilling out of taps, except under military supervision, in a city of nearly half a million people come early May. Record drought has caused all available stores of water to dry up. A perfect storm of drought, rapid population expansion and change in the climate has caused the second largest city in Africa to shift into crisis mode. It could happen anywhere. Cape Town is a "canary in the coal mine."

Cape Town isn't getting their aquifers recharged because there is no rain. Conservation measures include skipping showers, using bathwater to flush toilets, and stockpiling.

Australia has faced a similar crisis. Drought dries up reservoirs, population increases beyond infrastructure capacity, agriculture uses huge amounts of water, and conservation measures are not implemented or are able to keep up. There is a real concern about water barons taking over control and hiking the cost of water.

Brazil is facing shortages. It is all hard to believe as we hear about sea level rise and watch Houston, the fourth largest city in America, succumb to devastating floods.

A documentary produced in 2008 is worth watching if you can get it from your local library. FLOW - For Love of Water — lays out how water — a resource that humans believe they have free access to — is rapidly being purchased and controlled by big business. Bottled water has become a phenomenon, creating doubt in the minds of millions of people about the quality of their own tap water, charging 100 times the cost, and littering the land and oceans with plastic bottles.

The convenience is obvious, but the impacts are only just now being felt. Groundwater recharge — the process of aquifers being replenished by rain and snowfall — is hotly debated in Michigan, where Nestle Waters North America pumps over 130 million gallons of water each year for bottling, depleting aquifers and in some cases collapsing the earth around them, according to some environmentalists.

Locally, we know this water as Poland Springs. In some cases, bottled water sold by big box retailers has been found to be from the taps of municipal water supplies, selling water back to people who already having the exact same product flowing in their homes. Irony that the bottled water that has such an impact on the planet is the main way to survive against the lack of water in some countries.

Treaties and land agreements are putting large bodies of water and access to that water under the control of entities outside of local governments. It's concerning. Consumers may not be aware of the role they have in the global water issue, or how it might affect them personally in the future.

On the local front, Tewksbury seems to be doing well with conservation, and small changes yield big results. A recent conversation with the water treatment plant manager Lew Zediana revealed that Tewksbury's consumption is actually down, perhaps lending to private wells, but more importantly, thanks to residents' conservation efforts. Water saving shower heads, more efficient appliances, and a general awareness of water usage is helpful. Not letting the water run while washing dishes, using rain barrels to collect water for gardens, and shorter showers make a positive impact in the long run.

The Merrimack River, Tewksbury's water source, starts way up near Lake Winnepesaukee and seems to be a strong source for drinking water — for now. One can imagine if the recharge of that river were to become depleted, all of the communities that rely upon it downstream would be affected.

Let's stay aware and keep conserving.

In this Friday, Feb. 2, 2018 photo, residents wait in a queue to fill containers with water at a source for natural spring water in Cape Town. South Africa's drought-hit city of Cape Town introduced new water restrictions in an attempt to avoid what it calls "Day Zero," a day in May when it might have to turn off most taps. Residents are asked to use no more than 50 liters of water daily.

Ong looks forward to bright future

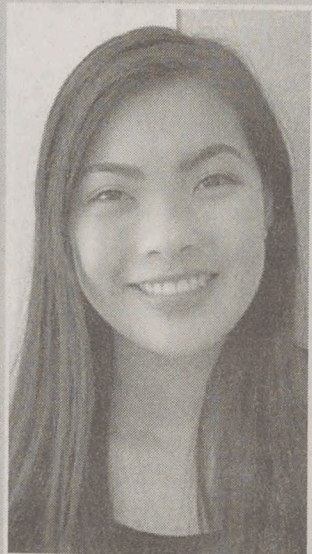

By MATT FRONDUTO

To call TMHS senior Connie Ong artistically talented would be nothing short of a massive understatement. A first generation Asian-American, Connie has always been infatuated with music and art, and while singing and playing guitar have captured her interest, nothing seems to match the love she has for her true passion: painting.

Thus, it should come as no surprise that her favorite class is Ms. Arnold's Senior Art Studio class, which has been rather valuable to Connie, as she told me, "I had no idea this class existed until the end of my junior year, and I'm so happy I did."

She said, "It's really helping me develop my artistic vision."

To further develop her artistic vision, Connie has been carefully eyeing The Massachusetts Institute of Art and Design (MassArt), a university that has consistently been ranked among the top art schools in the entire nation, as its reputation for expanding the minds of its students precedes itself. Therefore, it is hardly a surprise that one of Ong's top goals in college is to open her mind to other artistic mediums, and in doing so, further increase her chances of one day crafting and developing her own business, centering around the creation and sale of wholly original clothing and artwork.

Connie, the ambitious student she is, also would like to someday find herself under the employment of a design company, specifically working as either a product designer or perhaps in advertisement with a cosmetics brand. Regardless of what she decides to ultimately pursue, talent and vision like Connie's always breeds success, and there is no reason why she should be an exception.

Although her artistic endeavors do serve as a hobby, it does not consume all of her down time. She finds herself particularly fond of superhero movies, specifically anything produced by Marvel Studios, so when Avengers: Infinity War hits theaters this summer, you will surely see Connie in attendance on opening night!

NBC's critically acclaimed drama This is Us also has drawn praise from Ong, as she admitted, "My brother showed it to me... I was hooked by the first episode."

There is little doubt that Connie's enjoyment of such wondrous entertainment has a bit of influence on her artistically, which only harkens back to the fact that Connie's desire to produce art of great quality knows no bounds, and she is willing to use whatever she can to better herself and sharpen her skills, a trait that quite often breeds both success and happiness.

If you'd like to check out some of Connie's art, I highly recommend visiting her separate artistic Instagram account, @connie_art, which showcases some of her most breathtaking work. And trust me, it will not disappoint.

Miskell the 'biggest overachiever'

By TROY ACCONCIA

Ever wonder what an overachiever looks like? Well, look no further! Introducing TMHS's "Biggest Overachiever," senior superlative winner Garrett Miskell. This award couldn't be more fitting. Garrett goes up and beyond for just about everything he does.

Miskell has resided in Tewksbury for his entire life with his mom, dad, and older brother, Mitchell. Throughout his childhood, Garrett would always be playing soccer, reading, or playing video games. And you could always see Garrett getting straight A's in the classroom growing up.

High school was no different, in terms of grades. Miskell has continued to dominate the academic world. He has lived on the Principal's List these past few years even while taking various AP courses such as Chemistry and Calculus.

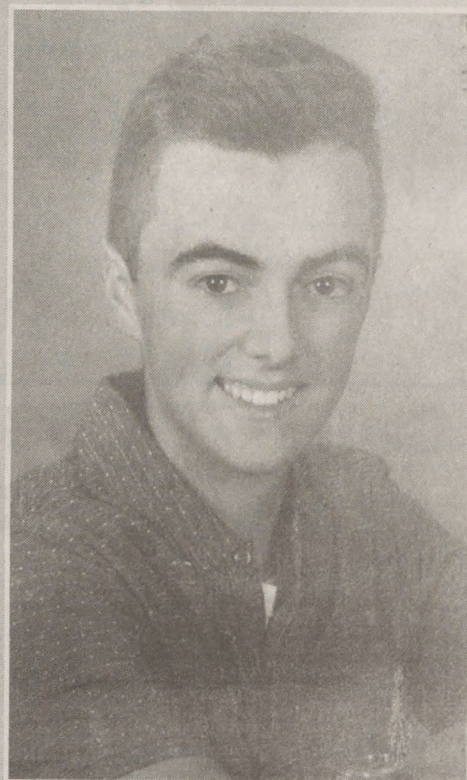

"High school was a very different experience," Garrett said. "Freshmen year I had to adjust, but soon after that I felt like I had a good handle on everything. My favorite part was making new friends and also all the things I learned. Before high school, I never knew that I would want to pursue a career in chemical engineering. Now, I feel like I can see what my future will be like."

As for his least favorite part of high school, Garrett said probably having to take the bus until senior year takes the cake for that question.

Outside of the classroom, Miskell is just as stellar. You could find him on the soccer field as well as the indoor and outdoor track. Garrett has even been apart of the Chemistry Club.

Now that he has already applied and heard back from colleges, Garrett is now trying to make a decision. He is deciding between two in-state powerhouse universities. UMass Amherst and UMass Lowell would be lucky to have Miskell's name on their attendance sheet come next fall.

It is clear to just about everyone at TMHS that Garrett Miskell is the "Biggest Overachiever." Whether you are in the same class, or on the same team as Miskell, you know that he goes the extra mile. And that's what will carry him the farthest in life. It won't be his top-of-the-class intelligence or even his infectious personality. It will be his work ethic, because that will never be matched.

and the candidate interviews themselves.

Dr. Art Bettencourt of search firm NESDEC spoke positively of his interactions with the Screening Committee.

"The other thing they kept front and center were the kids. I was just so pleased to see so much emphasis on what's good for children and who, as a leader, is going to be good ultimately for the children of the district."

Reference checks for the four candidates began on Feb. 1. NESDEC has also had one round of discussions in regards to employment conditions with the candidates; further discussions will be held in the coming weeks. Bettencourt was quick to note that, while NESDEC can check to ensure that the technical and factual components of each candidate's profile and application are correct, it is entirely up to the School Committee to assess the candidate for fit within the district.

"I think what you have in front of you is... a slate of four candidates who are all bringing something different to the table," said Bettencourt.

District visits for the candidates will begin in the coming weeks. Feb. 7 and Feb. 12 have been earmarked as preliminary dates, barring schedule conflict. Visits will consist of a host showing candidates around the district during the daytime hours, with an interview with the School Committee in the evening (tentatively scheduled for 7 pm each date).

noted an article in a Worcester paper, which spoke of single bids being widespread in Massachusetts school districts. The article cited the larger companies entering and "winning" towns as a reason for decreases in the number of bids seen area-wide.

Wilmington will be paying $338 per day, per bus. Antonelli noted that he had calculated an area average cost of $352 per day, per bus, making Wilmington's costs lower than would be considered typical.

Wilmington is one of just a handful of suburban school districts that do not charge bus fees to students.

"It's very unusual not to charge fees, and when you talk to people in communities that do have heavy fees they're just astounded that there are no fees in the Town of Wilmington," Antonelli said.

Several School Committee members noted their satisfaction with what they considered a financially reasonable contract.

"The cost of transportation is always on the increase, substantially, and to take that effort to open that door..." said School Committee member MJ Byrnes. "We're looking at just over $14,000 in possible savings over this next contract bid and that in itself is a huge piece that we can certainly utilize in other areas of our budget and within our schools, and (which) hopefully will go back into the classrooms and to our students."

ects you saw on some of the prior slides, clearly one of the values, from my perspective, of building up these significant resources is to provide options, so we're not stuck with the only option being a debt exclusion when we're having to deal with some of these more expensive projects," said Hull.

One notable change, which may affect town finances in the coming year, is an increase in property values in Wilmington. According to the Assessor's office, the average home value has increased from $423,885 to $439,673 this past year.

"This is both a curse and a blessing," said Hull. "Certainly, as an investment, it's been beneficial. But for people who are... either on fixed incomes, or perhaps looking to downsize and stay in Wilmington, it's a challenge, just because it isn't property that's affordable.

In terms of town revenue, the majority (72.28 percent) comes from local property tax. The next largest portion is local aid, which will be increasing by 3.5 percent in the coming year due to changes made toward per pupil aid at the state level.

Hull also reiterated the prioritization of properly funding education in town, noting that Wilmington has handily met the foundation budget required by the Education Reform Act every year since it was put into place. Hull also thanked interim Superintendent of Schools Paul Ruggerio for taking on the position on short notice and under difficult circumstances.

"Certainly trust and competence are critical to these roles, and I can unconditionally tell you that Paul Rug-gerio has demonstrated both."

Members of the Board of Selectmen noted their satisfaction with the continued prioritization of a conservative approach for the town budget.

"The conservative approach that you have taken and the department heads have taken is phenomenal," said Selectman Ed Loud.

"What you've illustrated here is, in my opinion, a way for us to get a lot of bang for our buck," added Chairman Michael Champoux.

With the budget proposed, the town enters a process of meeting with various boards and committees to determine where potential modifications will be made. The meetings began on Feb. 1, and will continue through March 20. A full schedule can be found on the town website.

Northeastern University freshman defenseman

Murphy helps Huskies defeat BC in Beanpot opener

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
BOSTON - The 66th Annual Beanpot Hockey Tournament returned to TD Garden on Monday night, continuing a Boston tradition unlike any other, with Boston College, Boston University, Harvard and Northeastern squaring off for local college hockey supremacy and bragging rights. Playing in the prestigious tournament has been a dream of many New England hockey players over the years, and for one local player, on Monday night that dream came true, as Collin Murphy of Northeastern, a freshman defenseman at Northeastern, suited up for the Huskies. He was part of their 3-0 win over Boston College in the tournament semi-finals, helping his team to advance to next Monday's final against Boston University, who beat Harvard 3-2 in overtime in the other semi-final.

For Murphy, who grew up a fan of the Beanpot, with hope of playing Division 1 college hockey, it could not have been a better night. Murphy still has a long career ahead of him at Northeastern, where he is in just his first semester as both a student and a player, so while Monday night marked just the beginning of a long career, it also marked the culmination of a life long goal.

"It was something I have waited to be a part of for a long time, so I am very thankful for the opportunity and I am very happy to be here," Murphy said minutes after the game. "I have been going to watch it since I was a kid and it is one of my favorite things. That was a big attraction for me as a Boston kid."

It may have been a huge goal of his to take the ice at the Beanpot, but Murphy, who had played plenty of big time hockey in his life, including playing at TD Garden while at Austin Prep, wasn't awe struck by the moment.

"It's definitely a big stage, but you have to take it like any other game and just play," Murphy said.

That has been Murphy's philosophy since arriving on campus at Northeastern, and playing in his first game back on December 30 against AIC. He played in his first seven games as a member of the Huskies, even picking up his first collegiate point with an assist against Maine in a 5-3 win on January 12, before sitting out the past three games before Monday's return to the lineup at the Beanpot.

Murphy knew Hockey East would be an entirely new level of competition, and it has lied up to his expectations.

"It's what I expected," Murphy said. "It's fast, it's big boy hockey, but I am happy to be a part of it, and I think I am holding my own pretty well."

Prior to attending Northeastern, Murphy had already been playing some big boy hockey of his own with the Muskegon (Michigan) Lumberjacks of the USHL, appearing in 21 games and recording one goal and one assist along with 29 penalty minutes and a +5 rating.

The USHL is the top junior hockey league in the United States, and has 17 teams located in the Midwestern United States, consisting of players who are 20 years of age and younger, so the competition level on a nightly basis is fierce, and was a great preparation for the rigors of Division 1 college hockey. Murphy was originally scheduled to start at Northeastern in the fall of 2018, but when the call came from the Huskies coaching staff to join the team and the program a little early he did not hesitate.

"It wasn't a difficult decision at all," Murphy said. "The Northeastern coaches made it clear that they wanted me to come in early, so for me it was a no-brainer to come in early and get started. I am happy to be back home."

Coming home to play was definitely a big attraction for Murphy as he was eager for the opportunity to once again play in front of his parents, Sean and Liz Murphy, as well as many other family members.

"It's awesome to be back home where they can come watch me now. I was away for a little, and they weren't able to see me play, but now that I am back home they can come to all the games, so that is nice," Murphy said. "My mom is away right now, but my dad and my sisters were here tonight, and a couple of my uncles were here, so that was great to have so many people here."

There will undoubtedly be an even bigger crowd of supporters on hand to watch Murphy next week when Northeastern takes on Boston University in the Beanpot finals, with the Huskies looking for their first Beanpot championship since 1988.

While he is just a freshman, Murphy knows how big a Beanpot championship would be for his team and for his school.

"I am very excited for next week," Murphy said. "Hopefully we can get the win, and make some history for Northeastern."

Both track teams finish in 10th place at ML Meet

ROXBURY - Both the Wilmington High School boys and girls indoor track-and-field teams finished in 10th place out of 12 teams during Monday's Middlesex League Championship Meet held at the Reggie Lewis Center.

Woburn captured both titles, scoring 103 points in the boys meet with Lexington (96) and Reading (45) finishing second and third.

On the girls side, it went Woburn with 107 points, followed by Lexington with 71 and Winchester with 56.

Starting with the boys team, the top performer on the day once again belonged to senior John Kenney. He broke his own record once again in the 55-meter dash coming across at 6.66 seconds to finish third.

"John Kenney set the school record again as he ran a personal best time," said head coach Mike Kinney. "He is ranked third in Division 4 and he has a great chance (to win) at the divisional meet. He is a great athlete. I am very impressed with his focus and commitment."

The only other individual to place in the top six was Tyler Thomas, who was fifth in the shot put throwing 43-01.

"Tyler Thomas qualified for the state meet in the shot put throwing 43-1 for fifth place. His throw was a personal best of over three feet," said Kinney.

Rounding out the team's scoring was a fourth place finish by the 4x200 relay team of Mike Fothergill, Tom Hogan, Sam Vince and Kenney placed fourth with a combined time of 1:37.65 and then the 4x400 team of Max Duong, Jake Danieli with Brian and Kevin Elderder finished sixth with a combined time of 3:46.85.

Duong was also 15th in both the 300 (39.95) and long jump (17-04.50). Vince was also 11th in the 55-meter hurdles (8.81), Brian Elderder was 13th in the 1,000 (2:50.79), Danieli was 17th in the 600 (1:32.74), Kevin Elderder was 19th in the 1,000 (2:56.59), Hogan was 20th in the 300 (40.50) and Fothergill was 21st in the 55-meter hurdles (9.67).

Also competing in the meet included: Frank Melanson (25th, 7.31) and Bailey Smith (31st, 7.54) in the 55-meter dash; Richard Stuart (26th, 41.92) in the 300, Vincent De La Cruz (25th, 1:38.32) in the 600, Nolan Kennedy (26th, 3:04.03) in the 1,000, Greg Adamek (17th, 4:56.61), Joe Lydon (21st, 5:00.41) and Tom Goodwin (30th, 5:22.77) in the mile, Ben Packer (12th, 10:26.62) and Alex Boehm (17th, 11:31.49) in the two-mile, Brandon May who was 18th, 16-03.75) in the long jump and 27th, 10.16 in the 55-meter hurdles, and James Sheehan (14th, 39-03) and Nathan Curdo (26th, 33-02) in the shot put.

"Overall the team ran well and there were several personal bests. Captain James Sheehan also threw a personal best of 39-4," said Kinney. "Ben Packer ran a personal best in the two-mile at 10:26.62, an improvement of over six seconds. The 4x200 relay team of Duong, Danieli, Brian and Kevin Elderder also ran great splits to pull into a sixth place finish."

"I attribute the success of the throwers and sprinters to the great work of Assistant Coaches (Joe) Patrone and (Don) Wilson have done with the kids. They are both extremely knowledgeable and dedicated coaches. They are both great assets to the program. Things are looking very promising for the spring (track team)."

Turning to the girls' team, only two individuals placed in the top six with Emma Garrity taking third in the 600 at 1:44.23 and Hannah LaVita was fifth in the high jump, clearing 4-11.

"For a championship caliber meet, the girls really put it all together," said head coach Brian Schell. "We managed to have fourteen personal records on the day and all of them were solid performances. They clearly brought their 'A' games to a big meet and it is what we train for."

Garrity's performance in the 600 was just one of several in that event. Evelyn-Miller Nuzzo was 14th at 1:50.24 and Maggie Bourgeois was 19th at 1:54.92.

"I am happy for Emma," said Schell. "It may not have had her best time, but she still managed to finish her race strong and hold on to take third place which is awesome for her."

"It was good to see Evy-Miller-Nuzzo find that last surge she always had last year. She managed a great race and took off three seconds to have a personal record. Maggie ran the race of her life. She came out of the break in last by a substantial margin, but stuck to her race we talked about. She went strong progressing into her last lap and managed to win her heat and took six seconds off to personal record and break the two-minute barrier. I'm very happy for her as a freshmen to push this far."

LaVita cleared 4-11 in the high jump to take fifth and qualify for the state meet. "Both Hannah and Juliana (Patrone) had a personal record as well. Not of them looked solid at their attempts at each height and the next. I am especially happy for Hannah for qualifying for states and getting over that hump."

Amie Russell just missed on placing as she was eighth in the shot put throwing 31-05 and Shannon Murphy was 24th at 22-04.00.

In the other running events starting with the 55-meter dash, Anna Rideout was 22nd at 8.43, Aaliyah Abel was 29th at 8.60 and Grace Foley was 30th at 8.65.

In the 300, Julia McLaughlin was 19th at 46.56, Katie McLaughlin was 28th at 48.42 and Victoria Gemellaro was 33rd at 54.20.

"All three girls showed up big to have personal records," said Schell. "Despite being in the first heat and only two other competitors, Katie looked solid went out hard and stayed strong all race leading start to finish. Julia as well ran a great race and found that last 50 meters surge to pass some one. If she can bring this same focus in her leg of the 4x400, she can get a huge split."

In the 1,000, Sam Burke was 25th at 3:44.10, Mia O'Connell was 26th at 3:45.97 and Allison Jordan was 30th at 3:55.07.

In the mile it was Lailoo Perriello finishing 17th at 6:08.18 and Gianna Misuraca 24th at 6:13.12.

"Having not done much long runs all season, both Lailoo and Gianna built some speed and strength for themselves," said Schell. "They both looked strong their entire races and ran very consistent splits. Each ran seven seconds and six seconds respectively off their best times and I am very happy for them. Through better training when the snow is gone, I can see them both breaking six minutes."

Finally for individuals,

Kerri Barnum (20th, 10.83), Joanne Arulraj (31st, 11.37) and Miriam Nelson (33rd, 11.92) competed in the 55-meter hurdles.

"The hurdlers looked strong today," said Schell. "We worked lot more on speed this week than hurdle technique. Kiki managed to break that eleven second barrier for the first time this season and even setting a personal record. I am happy for her and Miriam, who also had a personal record, and Joanne as well who looked solid."

The 4x400 relay team of Bougeois, Miller-Nuzzo, O'Connell and Perriello finished 9th at 4:45.43 and the 4x200 relay team of LaVita, Rideout, Patrone and Katie McLaughlin finished 12th at 2:03.71.

"Overall, the end of the season is what we train for, bring our best and the girls did just that. They warmed up well, got focused, put everything together that we trained for and it was great to see it all pay off," said Schell.

Wildcats making big strides on the ice

By JAMIE POTE

jamiapote@hotmail.com
WILMINGTON - When a team finishes 1-2 during the week, you would never think that would be something to be happy about. But for the Wilmington High School Girls' Hockey team, they should be elated.

The three game stretch started out with a 2-0 win over Lexington last Friday. Dating back to the 2011-'12 season, Wilmington had gone 0-5-1 against the Minutemen which a pair of 10-0 losses.

The week continued with a 3-0 loss to Melrose. Dating back to the same 2011-'12 season, the 'Cats had gone 2-8-2 against the Marauders (that includes the first three years when Melrose was a Co-Op team with Watertown).

Then on Tuesday night, with members of the Under 12 girls' hockey team in attendance, the 'Cats played a terrific back-and-forth game against Burlington, but were defeated 2-1. And dating back to the 2009-'10 season when the two teams played in non-league games for two years before entering the Middlesex League, the 'Cats had gone 0-13 against the Red Devils.

So to recap, before this week the Wildcats had gone a combined 2-26-3 against Lexington, Melrose and Burlington and came away with a 2-0 win over Lexington and very competitive losses to the other two teams.

"The team is getting better," said first-year head coach John LaPiana, who has done a real nice job behind the bench. "All teams improve from December 1st to March 1st, they are supposed to, they should and most do, and despite the loss tonight (against Burlington), I think our improvement has been obvious."

"We had plenty of chances

(to score) but for whatever reason just a little bit out of body position or whatever (it didn't happen). It's a fast game."

Tuesday's game was a true battle. Both teams played very well, going back-and-forth for three periods with a number of scoring chances. Wilmington had the better of the chances with pucks rolling through the crease, a number of breakaways, a 2-on-0 and then a number of close in-tight chances with shots missing the net.

We try to instill things during practice like body position, moving the goalie, getting in the lane so you give yourself an angle, not letting the goalie play to their strength and those things are progressions that players need to make," said LaPiana about the team's offensive chances that were missed. "They are not a lot of players at this level that can instantaneously make that adjustment. A lot of the time it's progression done over a matter of time. We're doing it in practice but practice is not as fearsome as a game."

The teams skated to a scoreless first period with the 'Cats holding a 7-6 advantage in shots. The 'Cats best bid came when Jill Miele took the puck from her own blue line, went down the right wing boards and after she got past the last defenseman, she cut in towards the net on a tough angle and her backhand was stuffed by goalie Meghan Gaffney (21 saves). Wilmington did score a goal with 1:02 left but it was waved off due to a hand pass.

In the second period, the 'Cats had several chances again despite being outshot 12-6. Miele came down on a 2-on-1 and her shot went off Gaffney's shoulder.

Then with about four minutes left in the period and trying to kill off a penalty, a loose puck was sent through the neutral zone before slowing down just inside the Burlington zone. Gaffney came went out of her net, charging up to the top of the left hand circle trying to beat a hustling Danielle Silva to the puck. She did, blocking Silva, but the puck squirted loose and was sent through the crease as several of Silva's teammates couldn't get a stick on it.

Late in the period, Miele was on a 2-on-1 break and she took the puck wide and fed her teammate, who had an open corner, but the puck trickled off her stick keeping the game scoreless after two periods.

Wilmington finally got on the scoreboard just 1:08 into the third period as Lia Kourkoutas was sent in alone and she beat Gaffney on the backhand going over the pads for the tally. Burlington, however, would tie the game up with 9:01 left on a scramble in front with Morgan Arrigo putting home a loose puck before Maggie Milne scored the game winning on another scramble in front.

"It's a tough loss so what are you going to do? The girls played well, they left everything on the ice and you can tell that the girls are upset with the way they are leaving (the rink)," said LaPiana. "As long as they are doing what they are supposed to be doing, that's expected. That was a hard fought game."

One player who continues to get better and better on the ice is Payton Fuller. A sophomore, she has three assists this season and is looking to grab that first tally.

"Payton has gotten consistently better. She hasn't black-toed this season. As a coach, you never want to see anyone black-toed, you want to see them keep climbing the ladder and Payton continues to climb the ladder. It's not showing on the scoresheet but I'm optimistic that if you do the right thing, eventually that will happen for you," said LaPiana.

As good as the forwards and defensemen played, this was another stellar performance by Wilmington goalie Melanie Hayden, who turned away 24 shots including back-to-back gem kick out saves in the first period.

"She makes so many saves that you wouldn't expect any goalie to make," said LaPiana. "She keeps us in every game. Look at tonight, a 2-1 game. It was a ton of work for her, there were a ton of pucks in her crease and there was a ton of action. We are trying to keep the shots outside of the (face-off circles) and we're defending that okay, but there are a lot of pucks in front of her and she keeps us in every single game. She is very good at that first shot and being square to the shooter. She really has been great for us. She could be the MVP of our team every single game."

In the win over Lexington,

Hayden earned the shut out making all 18 saves and was helped out by single goals by Miele and Lauren D'Angelo.

"We don't have a lot of wins but that was a big one," said LaPiana. "We're confident going down the stretch. With all of the games that we have lined up, there are games that we can win and games we could easily lose but that will all depend on how hard the girls work. If they work like they did tonight, I like our chances."

With the 1-2 week Wilmington is now 4-10-1 overall and have been eliminated from state tournament contention. The 'Cats have five games left on the schedule including Wakefield at home Saturday at noon, followed by road trips to Stoneham, Watertown and St. Joe's Prep, before finishing the season at home against Bishop Fenwick on Thursday, February 22nd at 10:00 am.

Grapplers only take one match in quad meet

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
TWEEKSBURY - Since the start of the season, the Wilmington High Wrestling team has had to overcome a rather thin lineup, unable to fill certain weight classes simply due to having low numbers on their roster. But throughout the season they have managed to overcome this obstacle, getting the most out of each wrestler who did take to the mats, competing very well in most of their quad meets, and having a lot of success with several wrestlers placing in tournaments as well.

But lately, the injury bug has started to creep up on the Wildcats, with several wrestlers forced to miss time due to various ailments. This past Saturday at the Wynn Middle School, the weakened lineup proved to be too much to overcome for the Wildcats, who went 1-3 in a super quad meet against Greater Lowell, Reading, Tyngsboro and host Tewksbury.

The Wildcats lone victory on the day came over Tyngsboro by a score of 42-30, while they lost to Reading 42-36, Greater Lowell 48-30 and Tewksbury 42-30. It didn't help that with at least three weight classes not filled due to injury, the Wildcats began most of their matches in an 18-0 hole due to forfeits.

"We have really been nailed by the injury bug the last couple of weeks, so in team competitions it is really tough for us, and it certainly reared its ugly head against us this week," Wilmington coach Joel McKenna said.

Despite the injuries, and despite the tough loss, the Wildcats did get several outstanding performances on the day, with freshman Shane Penney, who wrestled at both 106 and 113 pounds, and senior Brendan Ross (195), both going 4-0 on the day.

"Shane had a very good day," McKenna said. "He has faced some very tough competition the past couple of weeks, and he has been wrestling well. This was a good way for him to head into the post season. And Brendan is wrestling really well also. He has an eight match winning streak going for himself, so we are very excited about that."

Senior captain Pat Carroll also went 4-0 on the day at 152 pounds, John Cox went 3-1 at 152 and 160 pounds.

Sophomore Jacob Bernard (113), junior Ethan Karnesky (132) and junior Adam Bishop (160) each were forced to miss the day due to injury.

"Those are big holes for us to fill and we haven't been able to fill them," McKenna said. "Going into most matches down 18-0 is tough to overcome. But give our kids credit. Our big thing this year has been to push each other as individuals to make us a better team overall and the kids have been doing that."

McKenna was very proud of the effort of his team to beat Tyngsboro, who is led by legendary Hall of Fame coach Jim Tansey, who is retiring at the end of this, his 32nd season.

"That is an outstanding, well coached program," McKenna said. "He has been an unbelievable coach at a small school. He has had a great impact on the wrestling community, so for us to be able to come up with a win over a team coached by him is great for us. They are also a good sectional opponent, who we be seeing this weekend."

Against Wilmington, the Wildcats got wins from Penney at 106 pounds by pin, Carroll (152, pin), Ross (195, pin) and DeLucia (forfeit).

As McKenna, mentioned the Wildcats will be heading to the Division 3 North Sectional Tournament this weekend, which will be held at Melrose High School. While on one hand McKenna is excited for the opportunity to see many of his wrestlers compete on an individual basis because he feels they will be very successful, on the other hand he is disappointed that several of his wrestlers may not get a chance to compete due to injury.

"It's disappointing to lose matches like this because of injuries, but I will be more disappointed if kids aren't able to wrestle in the sectionals, because when all is said these kids have gone above and beyond all expectations and they deserve that opportunity. It will be disappointing for me as a coach if these don't get the opportunity to succeed at the sectional tournament."

While the Wildcats are literally limping to the finish line of the regular season, McKenna has been very happy with his team's performance this season, particularly given the inexperienced roster they brought into the season.

"At the start of the season we were looking at a lot of kids who were new to the sport of wrestling, or at least new to high school wrestling," McKenna said. "We have one kid (Pat Carroll), out of 18 kids on our roster who competed for four years at the high school level."

"We were a big question mark at the start of the season, but each kid has gotten the most out of their potential, so I hope they all get the opportunity to wrestle in sectionals."

WILMINGTON - A month ago, first-year Wilmington High School girls' basketball coach Jessica Robinson said that the team's second match-up against Melrose was a game that would be circled on the Wildcats' schedule. At that time, she was hoping that the Wildcats could pull off a win against the Middlesex League Freedom Division front-runners, after losing to the Red Raiders by just four points in the first game.

The second match-up didn't result in a win, instead the scoreboard said it was a lopsided loss at 56-38. While Wilmington didn't shoot well either from the floor or free throw line, the men in stripes didn't help as four of the five starters were in foul trouble early on, with countless number of questionable calls throughout the entire night -- especially in the final few minutes.

The 'Cats trailed by six at the half, by ten after three and by nine with 1:44 left before the Red Raiders closed out the game outscoring the 'Cats 8-3 with all of their points coming from the charity stripe.

Melrose improved to 11-3 on the season and Wilmington fell to 8-6 and still need two more victories to qualify for the Division 2 North Sectional tournament.

"We worked very hard and it's never been lack of effort," said Robinson. "We just didn't finish and we couldn't put in bunnies. I would say that we probably shot 20 percent and we didn't shoot well from the free throw line either. Our goal

Boys come back strong and net two wins

By JAMIE POTE

Just four days after the program's most lopsided loss in decades, the Wilmington High School Boys' Hockey team rebounded with a 6-1 win over Lexington and then carried that over to Saturday with a gutsy 3-2 victory over Melrose.

The two wins pushes Wilmington to 6-7-0 overall. Wilmington now needs four wins in their last seven games to qualify for the state tournament, or the team can also qualify under the "Sullivan Rule" needing three points in four games against Wakefield (two games), Stoneham and Shawsheen Tech.

The first win over Lexington was certainly far different than what the final score indicates. The 'Cats were outshot 41-14 in the game but were able to cash in six times. Nate DiMeco and Ryan Barrett had two goals each, while, Joe Mirabella and Tom Worob had single tallies. Defensemen Dylan Bresnahan and Michael Fiorenza picked up two assists each, while, Michael DuCharme, Tommy Robarge, Connor Benoit and Barrett had one assist each.

The story of the game was junior goalie Anthony Cuozzo. He made 40 saves in his first start dating back to December 29th.

"Cuozzo played really well," said head coach Steve Scanlon. "We had a lot of trouble getting the puck out of our own."

The second win against Melrose was also a big one considering the Red Raiders (8-7-1) are pushing to qualify for the state tournament as well. The game was tied at 2-2 until about five minutes left with Barrett found the back of the net for the game winner with an assist from AJ McKearney.

"Good solid win for us against a good team. Nice to see us lock down a tight game," said Scanlon.

Again Cuozzo was terrific in the net making 31 saves.

"Anthony had another good performance. He is very calm and doesn't get rattled. Takes the puck out of play when we are trouble," said Scanlon.

The two wins really helps Wilmington's chances of qualifying for the state tournament whether with a .500 record over the 20 games or by the Sullivan Rule, which is having a .500 record against Division 2 and 3 schools, when you play 70 percent of your schedule against Division 1 teams. If Wilmington can come away with three points against Wakefield, Stoneham and Shawsheen, it'll get into the D2 North Tournament.

"I am not a big fan of the Sullivan Rule," said Scanlon. "I believe teams should have to earn their way in to the Tourney. That being said, I understand why they have the rule. For a program like ours, we have our hands full trying to qualify in one of the strongest public-school leagues in the State."

"In the Division 2 (North) Tourney we would be a serious contender. If players and coaches are going to be judged by tourney qualification, then any way to get there is the goal."

Wilmington has a very busy week. On Wednesday, they faced the dynamic Burlington Red Devils (14-2-0) with results not known as of presstime. On Saturday will be a home match-up with Wakefield (4-10-1) at Ristuccia at 2 pm. Wakefield is the same boat needing three points against the 'Cats to qualify.

After that, the 'Cats will visit Medford on Monday night for a non-league game and then travel to Stoneham next Wednesday.

defensively is to keep teams in the 50s and they ended up going to the line a lot.

"This was a tale of two halves. I thought we made some good adjustments defensively but we just haven't been able to put the ball in the net consistently especially down the stretch. Games against good teams you have to put the ball in the net."

After a slow start for both teams, Melrose started to execute its outside game connecting on four treys to jump out to an 18-4 lead, just 1:10 into the second quarter. Wilmington then adjusted defensively, taking away a lot of the perimeter shot opportunities and on the flip side the team's offense got into gear.

The 'Cats went on a 13-1 run behind two baskets from freshman Kylie DuCharme, one each Caroline Anderson and Jenna Tavanese and four freebies by Dana Goulet and another by DuCharme.

That cut the deficit to two at 19-17, before Melrose closed out the half hitting 5-of-6 free throws.

As well as Wilmington played in the second quarter, it seemed to the opposite in the third. The 'Cats managed just three field goals - two from Morgan Bresnahan and another on a put-back by DuCharme - and Melrose built the lead back up to ten.

The Red Raiders extended the lead to 15 with 3:02 left before DuCharme and Jill Roche scored on back-to-back baskets. Both teams exchanged two free throws each and with 1:15 left Tavanese drained a three-pointer cutting the deficit to nine. Melrose then closed out the game scoring on eight free throws.

"We had Caroline, Bella (Granara), Dana (Goulet),

Liz (Gordon) all in foul trouble," said Robinson. "It's tough to do anything when four of your five starters are in foul trouble all game. We did get real good minutes from Kylie (DuCharme), Jill (Roche) and Jenna (Tavanese) off the bench and we have a good rotation going.

"Anyone I have ever put in, even those who didn't play tonight, has never been a question about effort or work ethic. We just need to be more efficient."

On Tuesday night, Wilmington dominated Burlington 55-25 to improve to 9-6 overall and inch closer to a state tournament berth.

The 'Cats led 24-20 at half before blowing the doors open by outscoring the Red Devils 31-5 in the second half.

Tavanese led all scorers with 13 points, followed by Andersen (11) and Bresnahan added 7

"We came out ahead four at the half and behind a solid defensive effort led by Liz (Gordon), Dana (Goulet) and Kylie (DuCharme), we ran away with the game (in the second half)," said Robinson.

Burlington blasts Wilmington in Boys Hoop Game

Red Devils were red-hot from outside

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com
WILMINGTON - When the opposing teams comes out and drains four treys in the first five minutes of the game, you know you're in for a long night. And that's exactly what happened Tuesday night at the Cushing Memorial Gymnasium.

Burlington finished 14-for-31 from three-point land as the Red Devils showed off their long range shooting as well as terrific ball movement throughout the night. On the other side, Wilmington finished 1-for-18 from beyond the arc and worse than that the 'Cats scored a total of 12 points in the entire second half and were easily defeated 67-32.

The win for Burlington kept the Red Devils in first place in the Middlesex League Freedom Division and also pushed the team into post-season play with a 10-6 overall record. The 'Cats, who a week earlier qualified for the tournament under the "Sullivan Rule," fell to 4-13 overall including 0-13 in league competition.

The first time these two teams met back in early January, the Wildcats played zone defense against the Red Devils trying to take away the three-point shots, which head coach Phil Conners lives-and-dies-by. That defense kept the 'Cats in the game losing by three. The second time around Burlington's sharp shooters were able to easily break down the zone with quick ball passes to the open man.

"We probably shot about 40 percent (from the three-point line) which is good but maybe not great," said Conners, who first revitalized the Tewksbury High program and now is doing the same in his second year at Burlington. "They played a zone (defense) against us last time and we haven't seen much zone at all this year. They played a 2-2-1 back to a 3-2 everytime the first time we played them and that caught us off guard because we hadn't seen zone all season. Actually Wilmington is the only team that has done that against us. We got caught off guard the first time but we were more ready for it this time. Our ball movement was pretty good. We can shoot it and that's how I like to build my programs behind kids who can shoot. We try to shoot from five spots."

Mariano Rodriguez scored all of his team-high 15 points with three-pointers, including three in the first half, while, Justin Fitzpatrick (4), Ryan Culhane (2), Tyler Cannon (2) and Sean Hurley (1) also connected from downtown.

Just seconds into the game Culhane drained his first one and 90 seconds later he hit his second from nearly the same spot on the right wing, and two minutes later, Rodriguez hit nothing but net coming from both the right and left wings. The second one gave Burlington a 14-3 lead. Wilmington countered with a 6-0 run on back-to-back baskets from Danny Gracia (16 points) and one from Graham Smith on a dish from Chris Stokes to close out the first quarter down 14-9.

Burlington point guard Alex Wong opened the second quarter with a steal and lay-up, followed by a trey from Fitzpatrick pushing the lead to seven. Again Wilmington came back as Stephen Anthony gave the team a spark with a jumper and a three-pointer to cut it to two points with 4:55 left in the first half.

The teams exchanged a series of free throws before Joe Rebeiro converted on a floater in the lane to again cut the deficit to two. After that the game belonged to Burlington as the Devils closed out the half on a 6-0 run to lead 28-20 and opened the third on an 8-0 run to go up 16 before making things really ugly the rest of the game.

"We played zone the last time and it worked out pretty well," said WHS Coach Dennis Ingram. "We're in the weird situation where they were still playing for a playoff berth and we've qualified so we are trying to fine tune our stuff. We understand that our zone defense today was not a typical zone defense. It's designed to take out the three-point shooters. It didn't tonight especially in the third quarter when they hit six of them."

Certainly Wilmington struggled with its defense in this game.

"They started the game off hitting some uncontested three-pointers," said Ingram. "We gave them the extra six inches and that makes all of the difference. But they are a good shooting team. There were times when we were playing good defense, playing good defense and then they would go on a run and that's when you lose a little bit of your defensive intensity. It's tough to keep it up when you can only score seven points in a quarter."

The zone defense appeared to look like a 2-2-1 or a 3-2 at times, but Ingram said it expands from that a bit.

"It's more of a point-zone (defense) where we can do different things with it," he said. "Sometimes we'll deny the wing, sometimes we'll extend it and leave that area open near the foul line as no one really shoots foul line jumpers anymore. When it comes in there, we're looking to get the ball out of there and we have had some success doing that this season (just not tonight)."

"I've said this before, the defensive effort has been pretty consistent (this season), offensively we have put ourselves in a hole when we come out and score seven points in the third quarter and five in the fourth and finish 11-for-48 (from the floor like we did tonight). We took a lot of forced out of rhythm shots. It was not the best we have looked offensively. Burlington is a good team and they qualified tonight for the Division 2 tournament. When we enter the Division 3 tournament, we're not going to play a team as good as Burlington."

Gracia finished with 16 points and 7 rebounds, and then Rebeiro and Anthony had five points each.

On Friday night, the 'Cats were defeated by Melrose 56-44. Smith led the way with 15 points, 6 rebounds and 4 assists, while, Gracia finished with 14 points and 9 rebounds.

Wilmington will try to get back on track with a home game on Friday against Wakefield before finishing the regular season with two road games against Stoneham on Tuesday and Watertown on the 15th.

“When Do I Use Ice, When Do I Use Heat?”

By GREG CROSSMAN
Guest Columnist

“When do I use ice and when do I use heat?”

This is a question that I get from my physical therapy patients on a daily basis. Here is a quick review of both treatments and, generally, the best time to use each. Before I begin though, there are certain conditions where each of these can be contraindicated such as circulatory or inflammatory conditions. You should contact your doctor or other medical professional prior to using these treatments.

Heat Treatment. Heat treatment can be in the form of moist heat or dry heat. Either option will vasodilate the blood vessels which will increase circulation to the area. This treatment can help to temporarily loosen up stiff muscles or joints, but it can also increase inflammation to the area. For an acute injury where there is swelling and inflammation, therefore, you would not want to use heat. Situations where you would most likely benefit from heat are:

Before exercise.
In the morning.
If the area feels tight.

Ice Treatment. Ice treatment can be in the form of cold packs, ice massage or even ice baths. Any of these options will vasoconstrict the blood vessels which will decrease circulation and reduce blood flow to the area. This treatment is great for reducing inflammation, but it also tends to increase stiffness in the area and dull the nerve endings. Ice treatment is contraindicated before exercise or if an area just feels stiff. Situations where you would most likely benefit from ice are:

After exercise.
At night.
If the area is painful.

These are general guidelines to follow and everyone is different. Some people react really well to heat and not ice, while others may experience the opposite responses. As I noted earlier, it's important to consult with your doctor or other medical professional to make sure that you have no contraindications to these treatments before you try them out to see which works best for you.

Rams capture CAC Championship Title

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
BILLERICA - For the past two seasons the Commonwealth Athletic Conference (CAC) championship had eluded the Shawsheen Tech Boys Hockey team, with the Rams coming up just short each year with second place finishes. And while two seasons may not be a very long time, it was far too long for Shawsheen coach Chuck Baker and his players, who expect to make a run at the league crown at the start of every season.

Well the “long” wait is over for Baker and the Rams, as on Thursday night at the Hallenborg Pavilion, the Rams clinched the CAC crown with a 4-2 win over league rival Essex Tech, capturing their first league title since 2015, and keeping their perfect league record intact in the process, improving to 11-4 overall and 8-0 in the CAC at the time.

Baker had said prior to the game that it was time to bring the CAC title back to Shawsheen, and he was thrilled to see his players go out and accomplish their season long goal.

“It’s great to win it. Realistically every year we should be vying for that,” Baker said. “Every now and then we have a down year, or drop one that we shouldn’t drop, but we should be in the hunt every year, if not win it, but we haven’t gotten it since 2015, so it is great to get it back.”

The Rams had to come back in order to win this one, falling into an early 1-0 hole in the first period, but they fought back to tie the game before the end of the period and put it away in the third after a scoreless second period which was dominated by the Rams.

While the Rams have been keyed by a balanced scoring attack in recent games, it was their top guns who got the job done in the league title clincher, with top line of senior right wing Nick Nardella, senior center Matt Irwin and senior left wing Andrew Tsoukalas each having goal and assist, while sophomore forward Dan McGaffigan of Wilmington also scored, and senior goalie Bobby Mitza made 21 saves.

Things did not start off well for the Rams, who found themselves in the penalty box in the early going. Essex quickly took advantage when Nick Lennon scored on a slapshot from the point during a 5-on-3 power play for a 1-0 Hawks lead just 3:40 into the game.

The Rams would fight back, however, getting on the board on a goal by McGaffigan, off an assist by senior defenseman Kyle Preble, with McGaffigan scoring a tough angle, glove side goal with 4:04 left in the period.

Whatever focus or sense of urgency the Rams lacked in the first period the Rams certainly seemed to find it in the second, controlling play from the opening faceoff, outshooting Essex 13-3 in the frame. They had nothing to show for it however, Essex goalie Shane Ahlin turned aside every opportunity and the teams went to the second period locker rooms tied at 1-1.

“In the first period we came out a little cocky, and maybe not as focused as we should have been. We try to be focused every night, but tonight we weren’t as much as we had been the past couple of games,” Baker said. “It took us a little while to wake up. We were much better in the second period, where we did everything but score. We hit the goalie with a lot of shots.”

Finally, early in the third period, the Rams got the goal they were looking for, and it came in exciting fashion with Irwin scoring a shorthanded goal just 42 seconds into the period on a great setup in front of the net by Nardella. It was the fifth shorthanded goal of the season for Irwin.

“He is relentless,” Baker said. “When he goes out there he is determined. He wants to get it done and he wants to score every shift and take care of business while he is out there. He is a great captain, and a great senior leader. Every time he steps on the ice, you feel like he is going to do something.”

The Rams would pad their lead less than four minutes later on a snipe by Nardella into the top corner off an assist from Preble to make

WRESTLING

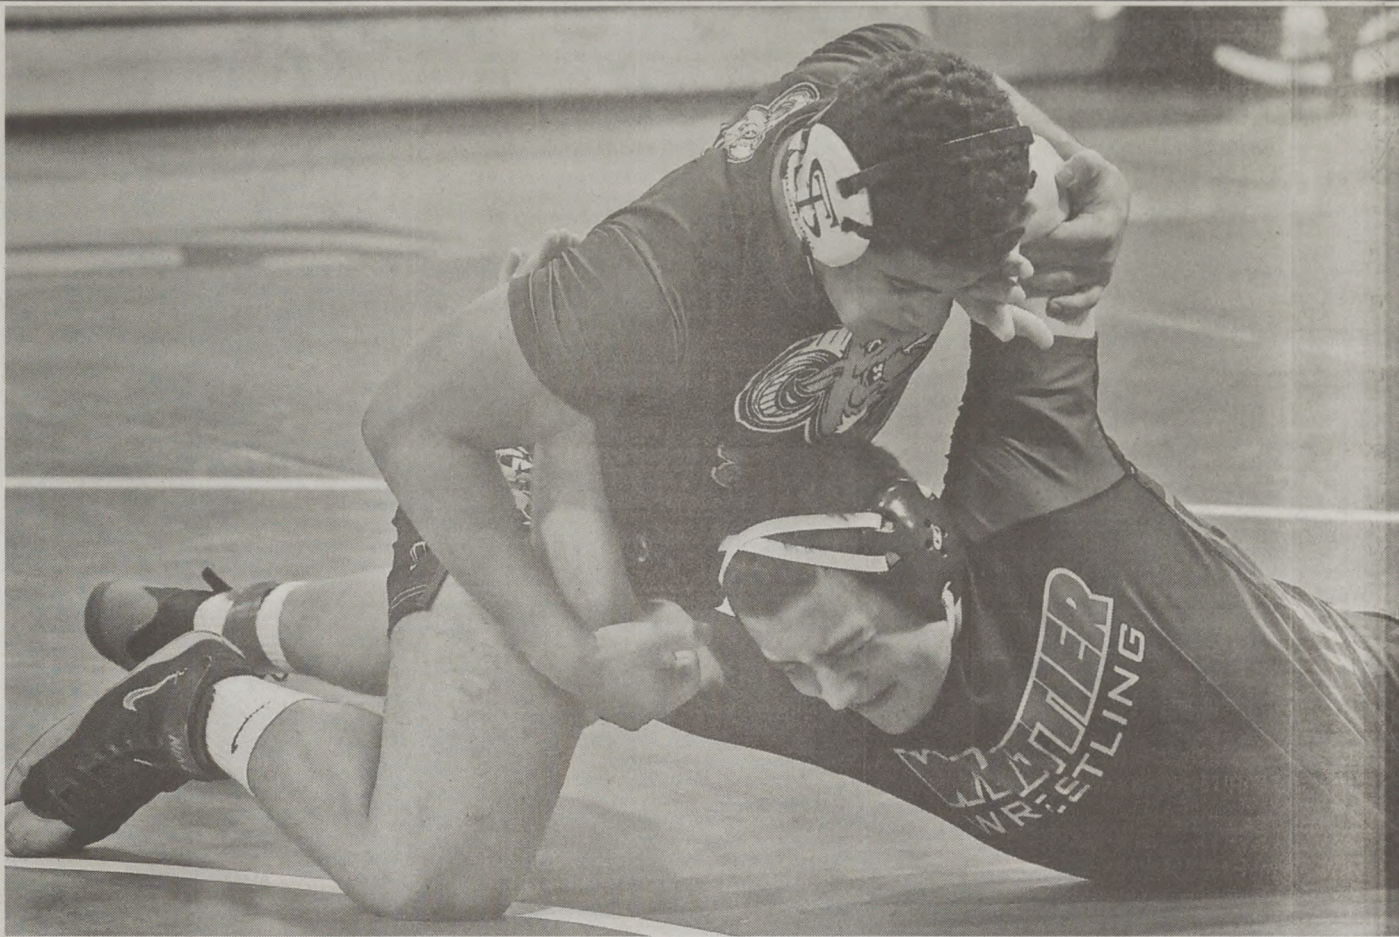

While the results didn't go exactly as they would have liked at the State Coaches Division 1 Dual Meet Championships at Franklin High School on Saturday, the Shawsheen Tech Wrestling team certainly showed that they deserve to be mentioned among the best teams in the state after finishing fourth among 12 teams competing at the event.

With their 1-2 day, the Rams are now 23-5 on the season in dual meets as they prepare for Division 1 North Sectional Tournament on Saturday at Methuen High School.

The Rams went 1-2 on the day, routing Framingham in their first match by a score of 51-16, before falling to powerhouse Chelmsford by a score of 49-21 and to St. John's Prep in a heartbreaker by a score of 37-35 in the third place match.

Rams capture CAC Hockey Title

the score 3-1 with 11:11 left in the game. The Rams had all the momentum at that point, but were unable to add any further to their lead, doomed in part by spending too much time in the penalty box.

"I thought we were going to pull away in the second period, and then I thought we were going to start to in the third, but some penalties really hurt us," Baker said. "The two minute penalties this year are killer. It is only 30 seconds more, but it seems like it takes forever. You almost have to have three or four guys ready to go on either the power play or the penalty kill. So that affected us a lot and affected our rhythm."

One penalty that did not end up hurting the Rams came with nine minutes left in the game, thanks to the efforts of Mitza, who stoned the Hawks Chris Masta on a penalty shot attempt to keep the score at 3-1.

Masta would get a measure of revenge just a minute and a half later, scoring from a nearly impossible angle to pull the Hawks within 3-2 with 7:35 left in the game. Essex would control play for the next few minutes, and looked to have a great opportunity to tie the game when they went on the power play with 4:28 left in the game.

The Rams, however, killed the penalty and moments after the kill was over Tsoukalas got Shawsheen the insurance goal they so desperately needed making the score 4-2 with 2:13 left in the game.

"it was good to see him score," Baker said. "We want to see a little more out of him, but that line is tough, and our second line with McGaffigan and (Jack) Duggan and (RJ) Page has been very good, and recently our third line (Brady McFadden, Drew Theodos and Jason Thibert) is playing pretty consistent. It is a new group together, but they are playing well."

The Rams followed up their big win over Essex with another CAC win over Nashoba Tech on Saturday night, downing the Vikings by a score of 3-1 to improve to 12-4 on the season and 9-0 in the CAC.

Shawsheen got goals from Irwin, along with a pair of senior goalie Matt Nikonchuk made 18 saves in net to pick up his first varsity win.
